The Guardian Public Services Awards 2007

The Guardian Public Services Awards were introduced 4 years ago to celebrate the work that makes a real difference to people's lives. The awards are a chance to share team pride and to gain national recognition.

The awards are split into 13 categories each with three shortlists. In October 2007 The Carers' Support Centre's Life Long Learning Project was fortunate enough to be short-listed under 'Customer Service'.

An Award Ceremony took place on 27 November 2007 in London and was attended by Mike Humphries (Director) and Mandy Barrett (Carer Support Officer, formally Life Long Learning Officer).

The Terrence Higgins Trust won the award for the 'Customer Service' category with the Carers' Support Centre coming second ahead of the National Archives!
